"There goes a fine woman, Martin. She'd make a good wife for somebody." Saul Espy and Martin Bross were conversing when the lady designated by the former passed down the road. Martin looked after her with a certain | ceats, feathers, draperies, coveringsford and longing expression in his eyes, but he sighed deeply.

"Yes, she's a very superior lady," he acceded. I have often thought how she would grace and deserve a pleasant home, but good fortune has not come her way. She just manages to eke out a living for herself and her little child, Winifred. As to myself, you know father left the property here

"Queer about that, Martin. You know your father certainly had some money and securities before he died, for I borrowed and paid him $3,000 on

Saul Espy passed on his way and Martin entered the ramshackly old house where he had been born. It had been a lonely home to him. His mother had died when he was a child and at twenty-two he had found himself saddled with a badly run-down little farm, heavily encumbered. His nearest neighbor, Mrs. Mary Reeves, a widow and her little child were about all the company he had or sought. Mrs. Reeves was about his own age and they had become true friends.

Martin went into the house to pause, listen and smile. A whirring sound directed him to a corner of the kitchen where a mouse caught in a trap was speeding round and round in the tread-

The railroads are really the property of the bondholders, and present freight rates are sufficient to enable earning interest on the bonds and setting aside a fund to retire them in time.

SELF PRAISE AND SELF PITY.

Two of the odious vices are self-praise and self-pity. The man whose most congenial theme is himself never lacks for an PROMISES WELL FOR THE audience of one. But to more than one he is likely to be a boreespecially to those who wish to talk about themselves. What a man has to say in the way of extolling himself does not greatly matter. His reputation does not depend on the din he makes in his own ears. His reputation depends on what others say of him —and if he stops to listen, or if he eavesdrops to hear what others say, it is worse even than if he disclosed to them his good opinion

What a joyful thing it is to behold a man who goes ahead, and does his work, and does not op and throw out his chest for a medal or a ribbon every now and then! He is not disturbed about his own rating; he is willing to leave his footing, high or low, to be determined by others. The most tiresome folk are those who are forever rising up to lay claim to the credit which, they say, is denied them.

Next to those who praise themselves those who pity themselves are a public nuisance and a social pest. We could all becloud the blue heaven continually with a description of our symptoms if we chose. Few of us are in perfect working trim all the time, but we do not have to keep society informed whenever we break out in a new place. If we intend to serve, our part is to carry burdens, not to impose them. It is a sad thing to see how some among us who are selfish victimize those that are generous.

A powerful medicine is needed for the cure of the delusions of selfishness, whether they are shown in self-pity or in selfpraise. It is hard to understand how the affectionate admiration ome people bestow on their own ego can survive the contact with the facts of life.

BOARD EMPLOYS ARCHITECTS FOR NEW HI SCHOOL

PRETSINGER AND MUSSELMAN OF DAYTON, SELECTED TO ERECT BUILDING

Pretsinger and Mussleman of Dayton, have been employed by the Xenia Board of Education as architects for the new high school build-

At a recess meeting which was held Wednesday night, as a continuation of the Monday night session, the board voted unanimously to employ the well known Dayton firm, after considering five prominent architects in that connection.

"In employing architects, the board wanted to have expert advice available, particularly in regard to a site for the new Central high school and the high school annex which is to be built to Lincoln school,' said John R. Beacham, business manager of the Xenia schools Thursday.

Mr. Pretsinger came to Xenia Thursday, to advise the board on the site proposition in connection with the annex to Lincoln school. The board also feels the need of expert opinion as to the location of the proposed new Central High school.

Other architects considered by the board in making its selection were; Frank L. Packard, Columbus; Louis Lott, city planner, of Dayton; Edmard Mountstephan of Dayton; Frederick Mueller, Hamilton.

In selecting Pretsinger and Musselman the board considered the fact that this firm had wide experience in high school planning, and also that Charles Russell, former Xenian, is building supeintendent for this firm, and has spent half of the ten years he has been with the firm, on school work.

President J. W. Santmyer of the board of education, appointed a site mmittee consisting of C. H. Little. A. G. Spahr and H. S. LeSourd, who ... with the architects in selecting sites for the new building 8 feet wide. and the annex. The board plans to abandon the East Main street school permanently, and to purchase land adjoining the Lincoln school on East Market street, on which to build an annex to take care of the high school.

NOTICE

To the Consumers of The Ohio Fuel Supply Company Xenia Division

Owing to the rapid decline in the naturalgas supply every effort must be made to conserve it that its use may be prolonged. Natural gas for industrial purposes is nearing the end. How long you will continue to have it for domestic use will depend largely upon your economy in its use. Industrial consumers and a few large residential furnace consumers have been the chief, and for the most part the only profitable consumers of the natural gas company. The time is here when this industrial consumption must be lessened and soon be discontinued in favor of the domestic consumer.

The average new well drilled for gas today, if a producer at all, produces one-third of the average production of a well four years ago, because of the fact that the good gas territory has heretofore been developed; and yet the cost of drilling a well now is double that of four years ago. These conditions exist because of the restricted areas of gas deposits, the exhaustion of the better and more reliable territory and the economic conditions brought about principally by the War and which are certain to remain with us for some time.

It is imperative that we greatly increase our development if we are to procure a necessary supply of natural gas in the immediate years to come for even domestic use. These conditions necessitate an increase in rate of consumers of this company and we have uniformly and equitably increased the rate which for the time being on the Xenia Division will be Forty cents (40c) net per thousand feet, with a minimum monthly charge of Eighty cents (80c) to each consumer. How long the company can maintain a supply at that rate, or any rate, remains to be seen. In the opinion of gas experts AT LEAST THREE FOURTHS OF THE ORIGINAL SUPPLY OF NATURAL GAS IS EXHAUSTED and it is plain that rigid economy must be practiced in its use if you are to continue to have the luxury of natural gas for any considerable length of time. If you will practice economy in its use, your gas bills under the increased rate will not be higher than under the former rate. You will thus postpone the day of artificial gas, costing three times as much and of one-half the heating value as the natural gas which you now consume. If you appreciate natural gas and desire to continue its use, this message raises a question of vital concern to you.

As a public utility the records of this company have been and are open to public inspection. If you desire any additional information, you are invited to call upon our local Sincerely yours, agent or write us direct.

The railroads are really the property of the bondholders, and present freight rates are sufficient to enable earning interest on the bonds and setting aside a fund to retire them in time.

SELF PRAISE AND SELF PITY.

Two of the odious vices are self-praise and self-pity. The man whose most congenial theme is himself never lacks for an PROMISES WELL FOR THE audience of one. But to more than one he is likely to be a boreespecially to those who wish to talk about themselves. What a man has to say in the way of extolling himself does not greatly matter. His reputation does not depend on the din he makes in his own ears. His reputation depends on what others say of him -and if he stops to listen, or if he eavesdrops to hear what others say, it is worse even than if he disclosed to them his good opinion of himself.

What a joyful thing it is to behold a man who goes ahead, and does his work, and does not op and throw out his chest for a medal or a ribbon every now and then! He is not disturbed about his own rating; he is willing to leave his footing, high or low, to be determined by others. The most tiresome folk are those who are forever rising up to lay claim to the credit which, they say, is denied them.

Next to those who praise themselves those who pity themselves are a public nuisance and a social pest. We could all becloud the blue heaven continually with a description of our symptoms if we chose. Few of us are in perfect working trim all the time, but we do not have to keep society informed whenever we break out in a new place. If we intend to serve, our part is to carry burdens, not to impose them. It is a sad thing to see how some among us who are selfish victimize those that are generous.

A powerful medicine is needed for the cure of the delusions of selfishness, whether they are shown in self-pity or in selfpraise. It is hard to understand how the affectionate admiration ome people bestow on their own ego can survive the contact with the facts of life.

BOARD EMPLOYS ARCHITECTS FOR NEW HI SCHOOL

PRETSINGER AND MUSSELMAN OF DAYTON, SELECTED TO ERECT BUILDING

Pretsinger and Mussleman of Dayton, have been employed by the Xenia Board of Education as architects for the new high school build-

At a recess meeting which was held Wednesday night, as a continuation of the Monday night session, the board voted unanimously to employ the well known Dayton firm, after considering five prominent architects in that connection.

"In employing architects, the board wanted to have expert advice available, particularly in regard to a site for the new Central high school and the high school annex which is to be built to Lincoln school,' said John R. Beacham, business manager of the Xenia schools

Mr. Pretsinger came to Xenia Thursday, to advise the board on the site proposition in connection with the annex to Lincoln school. The board also feels the need of expert opinion as to the location of the proposed new Central High school.

Other architects considered by the board in making its selection were; Frank L. Packard, Columbus; Louis Lott, city planner, of Dayton; Edmard Mountstephan of Dayton; Frederick Mueller, Hamilton.

In selecting Pretsinger and Musselman the board considered the fact that this firm had wide experience in high school planning, and also that Charles Russell, former Xenian, is building supeintendent for this firm, and has spent half of the ten years he has been with the firm, on school work.

President J. W. Santmyer of the board of education, appointed a site committee consisting of C. H. Little. A. G. Spahr and H. S. NOTICE

To the Consumers of The Ohio Fuel Supply Company Xenia Division

Owing to the rapid decline in the natural gas supply every effort must be made to conserve it that its use may be prolonged. Natural gas for industrial purposes is nearing the end. How long you will continue to have it for domestic use will depend largely upon your economy in its use. Industrial consumers and a few large residential furnace consumers have been the chief, and for the most part the only profitable consumers of the natural gas company. The time is here when this industrial consumption must be lessened and soon be discontinued in favor of the domestic consumer.

The average new well drilled for gas today, if a producer at all, produces one-third of the average production of a well four years ago, because of the fact that the good gas territory has heretofore been developed; and yet the cost of drilling a well now is double that of four years ago. These conditions exist because of the restricted areas of gas deposits, the exhaustion of the better and more reliable territory and the economic conditions brought about principally by the War and which are certain to remain with us for some

It is imperative that we greatly increase our development if we are to procure a necessary supply of natural gas in the immediate years to come for even domestic use. These conditions necessitate an increase in rate of consumers of this company and we have uniformly and equitably increased the rate which for the time being on the Xenia Division will be Forty cents (40c) net per thousand feet, with a minimum monthly charge of Eighty cents (80c) to each consumer. How long the company can maintain a supply at that rate, or any rate, remains to be seen. In the opinion of gas experts AT LEAST THREE FOURTHS OF THE ORIGINAL SUPPLY OF NATURAL GAS IS EXHAUSTED and it is plain that rigid economy must be practiced in its use if you are to continue to have the luxury of natural gas for any considerable length of time. If you will practice economy in its use, your gas bills under the increased rate will not be higher than under the former rate. You will thus postpone the day of artificial gas, costing three times as much and of one-half the heating value as the natural gas which you now consume. If you appreciate natural gas and desire to continue its use, this message raises a question of vital concern to you.

As a public utility the records of this company have been and are open to public inspection. If you desire any additional information, you are invited to call upon our local agent or write us direct. Sincerely yours,

The Ohio Fuel Supply Company

Knowledge of Lip Reading Restores Afflicted to Their Place in the Industrial World.

Deafness is a tribulation, but its effects are more psychological than physical. Deaf men as a rule have less difficulty in getting jobs than bave men with more obvious handicaps. The real handicap in deafness is that It is more calculated to inspire impatience than sympathy, and as a consequence, deaf men grow suspicious, irritable and complaining. The deaf man is a trial to himself and to the world, and he walks quite alone. Communication is the one thing that can restore him to normal contracts.

In order to effect this the Modern Hospital advocates lip reading as his Immediate necessity and salvation if he is to maintain a wholesome place in the world of industry.

A peculiarity of speech reading is that a person who can hear, cannot

There is a wide variety of industrial conditions which contribute to deafness. Because of these hazards, the Industrially employed form an extensive problem. Without training they are not only liable to discomfort and unpopularity, but they are a source of risk because of their inability to understand orders. From two points of view the deaf have a great need for a knowledge of lip reading, and should learn it at all costs. It fits them for an independent, useful career in in dustry, and in many ways re-establishes an intimate connection with nor-

They built for endurance, but their roads, say these surprising critics, were so tough that modern vehicles would be shaken to pleces on them in short order. If Julius Caesar had driven a moter car along the Appian Way, so suggests Motor Life, the journey would have shaken him out of his armor, shaken his plumed helmet off bis head, and presently have shaken his motor into a worthless wreck. The criticism comes from a study of the construction of the old Reman roads: but from what one knows of the Ro mans, one may feel reasonably cer lain that if Caesar bad been wont to ge about in an automobile the Roman engineers would have built roads that would have made motoring less exciting and expensive. CHILDREN'S PAVILION AT THE TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL SUGGESTED

A children's pavilion at the District Tuberculosis Hospital at Springfield is the idea that has originated with Mrs. Frank Bookwalter of that city.

Mrs. Bookwalter became interested in the work that is being done at the hospital for tubercular patients, after reading a published report made by the joint board of county visitors

She visited the institution, and be: came impressed with the idea that the children, of whom there are about twenty at the hospital should be separated from the other patients, having their own living, dining rooms and sleeping rooms, and schooling facilities. She told Dr. R. R. Richison, medical superintendent of the hospital of her idea, and said that she would make an effort to interest club women of the district in the project.

Dr Richison told the members the district board of Mrs. Bookwal-ter's idea at the January meeting which was held in Springfield Tuesday. The board members favored the suggestion.

While everything possible is now being done for the children who are patients at the hospital they have no schooling facilities except such as the nurses are able to give, and Mrs. Bookwalter's idea includes providing teachers for the little patients.

The hospital recently received a piano as a gift from the Rotary club at Springfield and this instrument is a source of much pleasure to the patients, young and old.

AT THE TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL SUGGESTED

A children's pavilion at the District Tuberculosis Hospital at Springfield the idea that has originated with Mrs. Frank Bookwalter of that city.

Mrs. Bookwalter became interested in the work that is being done at the hospital for tubercular patients, after reading a published report made by the joint board of county visitors.

She visited the institution, and be: came impressed with the idea that the children, of whom there are about twenty at the hospital should be separated from the other patients, having their own living, dining rooms and sleeping rooms, and schooling facilities. She told Dr. R. R. Richison, medical superintendent of the hospital of her idea, and said that she would make an effort to interest club women of the district in the project.

Dr. Richison told the members of the district board of Mrs. Bookwal-ter's idea at the January meeting which was held in Springfield Tuesday. The board members favored the suggestion.

While everything possible is now being done for the children who are patients at the hospital they have no schooling facilities except such as the nurses are able to give, and Mrs. Bookwalter's idea includes providing teachers for the little patients.

The hospital recently received a piano as a gift from the Rotary club at Springfield and this instrument is a source of much pleasure to the patients, young and old.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS

People who refuse to answer knocks and door-bell rings, and who refuse to answer questions propounded to them or who are answering them discourteously, are causing mahia trouble for local census enumerators.

People who refuse to answer knocks and door-bell rings, and who refuse to answer questions propounded to them or who are answering them discourteously, are causing abla trouble for local census enumerators.

People who refuse to let the census enumerators into the house, and who refuse to answer the questions asked by them, are making themselves liable to the government, and in case the enumeuators care to report them, may face serious trouble. Xenia wishes to swell its total as much as possible, and therefore people should be ready to receive the enumerator when he comes and not force him to call at the same house five or six times. If the enumerators are accorded better treatment this week will see the last of the work, as most of the enumerators believe that they can finish in three more days. The figures are then sent to the government and it will probably be some time before the totals are finally published.

VARIATIONS SHOWN IN FACE

In many instances it will be found that a person's features are not at all

REAL USE FOR "BEST MAN"

In Other Times, He Was Not, as Today, Merely a Lay Figure at the Wedding.

An outcome of the primitive procedure of seizing another man's bride at the altar was the comparatively recent custom in Sweden that marriage take place only after dark. The early Scandinavian idea was that it was not dignified for a warrior to woo a woman. Therefore he waited until she had been successfully courted by another, and then, when the marriage was about to take place, he appeared with his companions to carry off the bride.

Knowing the danger, a prospective bridegroom took measures to prevent his prize from being snatched away from him at the eleventh hour. Behind the altar of an ancient church at Husanby, Gothland, is an eld cellection of long lances, with sockets for torches, which illustrates the methods of defense resorted to. These were supplied to the groomsmen to furnish protection as well as illumination for the ceremony. All these groomsmen were called "best men" because they were the most powerful of the bridegroom's friends. But there was one special "best man" to protect his friend's bride, as he would help him steal another's. And it is in this capacity of protection rather than as accessory before the fact that the best man has come down through time and stands up at your wedding today.

Birds' Island Refuge.

On the west coast of Newfoundland stands an island, with perpendicular rocky sides, rising nearly 400 feet out of the sea. It is about three acres in area at the top. It seems to have been cleft from the mainland and is safely beyond reach of duck shot. Late in April the guillemots gather in the sea around this island in hundreds of thousands; and some fine morning, when the snow has disappeared from the top, they rise in a compact body flying fully a thousand feet in the air, then lowering and circling for half an hour around and around the top of the island, darkening the ground with the on the top and turning the white, limestained surface a shining black. Once settled they will not leave the island in a body till the last of June, unless a snowstorm comes. Then they take to the sea again until the snow has melted from their nesting place.

Pup Likes Strawberries. I told you a little while age about the fruitarian pup, which are apples and bananas and pineapple, and whose owner was only waiting for the strawberry season. I hear now that the pup's passion for strawberries is almost incredible, except to those who have seen him quivering with anticipation when the fruit comes on the table. When offered a piece of meat and a strawberry, he takes the latter without any hesitation; and he does not ask for cream or sugar. Indeed, his fondness for the fruit has proved his undoing; and at present he is not only in disgrace for clambering on the table and stealing strawberries from bowl, but he is also a little unwell.
